Dear Peter,

I've written you further about the pictures of which you sent me xeroxes and of a few others but I'm holding that until I can get my NEVER AGAIN! file box moved to when I can work in it and have gone over the pictures in the basement, where I rarely go, alas, because of the problems with the stairs. I think it will be less confusing if it is all at one time and in one place.

Some will be only copies when I send you the photographs themselves. What do you believe is the safest means?

Best,

Harold

I did send some photographs. Perhaps if you do not have them Raphaela knows where they are.
